Though I do not think that Studip was a perfect tool for me and my partner to negotiate tasks, it was not that bad as we had the possibility to use the forum and the chat function. All in all, it was stressful to work with my partner in the set time frame but I really enjoyed it. My partner and I came up with good ideas which is compensating the many hours I spent communicating with her. I liked that we worked on our task together. We have not just split up our task but came up with our results together.

This project was really fun to work on. I was assigned to a great partner and Germany. She had the same work ethic I had and we got along really great. We have actually become friends and have stayed in touch even after the project has finished.
